

Clinical Trial Long-Term Storage of Biosamples for Future Scientific Research

Subjects who participate in our clinical trials can provide their informed consent to allow biosamples to be used for future scientific research after the study is over. The biosamples will be stored at a long-term storage vendor (biorepository). These vendors are approved by the sponsor to store clinical biosamples, and based on company needs, the vendors may change over time to meet company objectives. To ensure subjects can access information after the study ends when it is no longer possible to notify the subjects of this change, the long-term storage vendors for biosamples kept for future research are specified below.

- Fisher Bioservices
- Azenta Life Sciences